Capital Strategy & Valuation Thesis

Synergist Technology in late 2026 early 2027 will raising between $10M–$15M in Series A to accelerate commercial scale, expand the AFFIRM AI assurance platform, and strengthen financial durability as enterprises and governments adopt AI at unprecedented speed. With regulatory pressure rising and AI assurance emerging as a foundational requirement, Synergist is positioned to become the independent oversight layer for enterprise AI systems.

Use of Funds

Synergist will deploy Series A capital evenly across three strategic priorities:

- Sales & GTM Expansion (33%) - Scale MSP, OEM, reseller, and international distribution channels to accelerate ARR growth and deepen distribution market share.
- Product Growth (33%) - Enhance AFFIRM's monitoring, compliance automation, and audit capabilities; expand integrations; strengthen our position as the AI assurance system of record.
- Cash Base & Working Capital (33%) - Maintain operational stability, support hiring, and ensure financial flexibility during rapid scale. Synergist also maintains a CIBC line of credit secured on ARR, providing flexible, non-dilutive capital to support growth or bridge timing gaps.

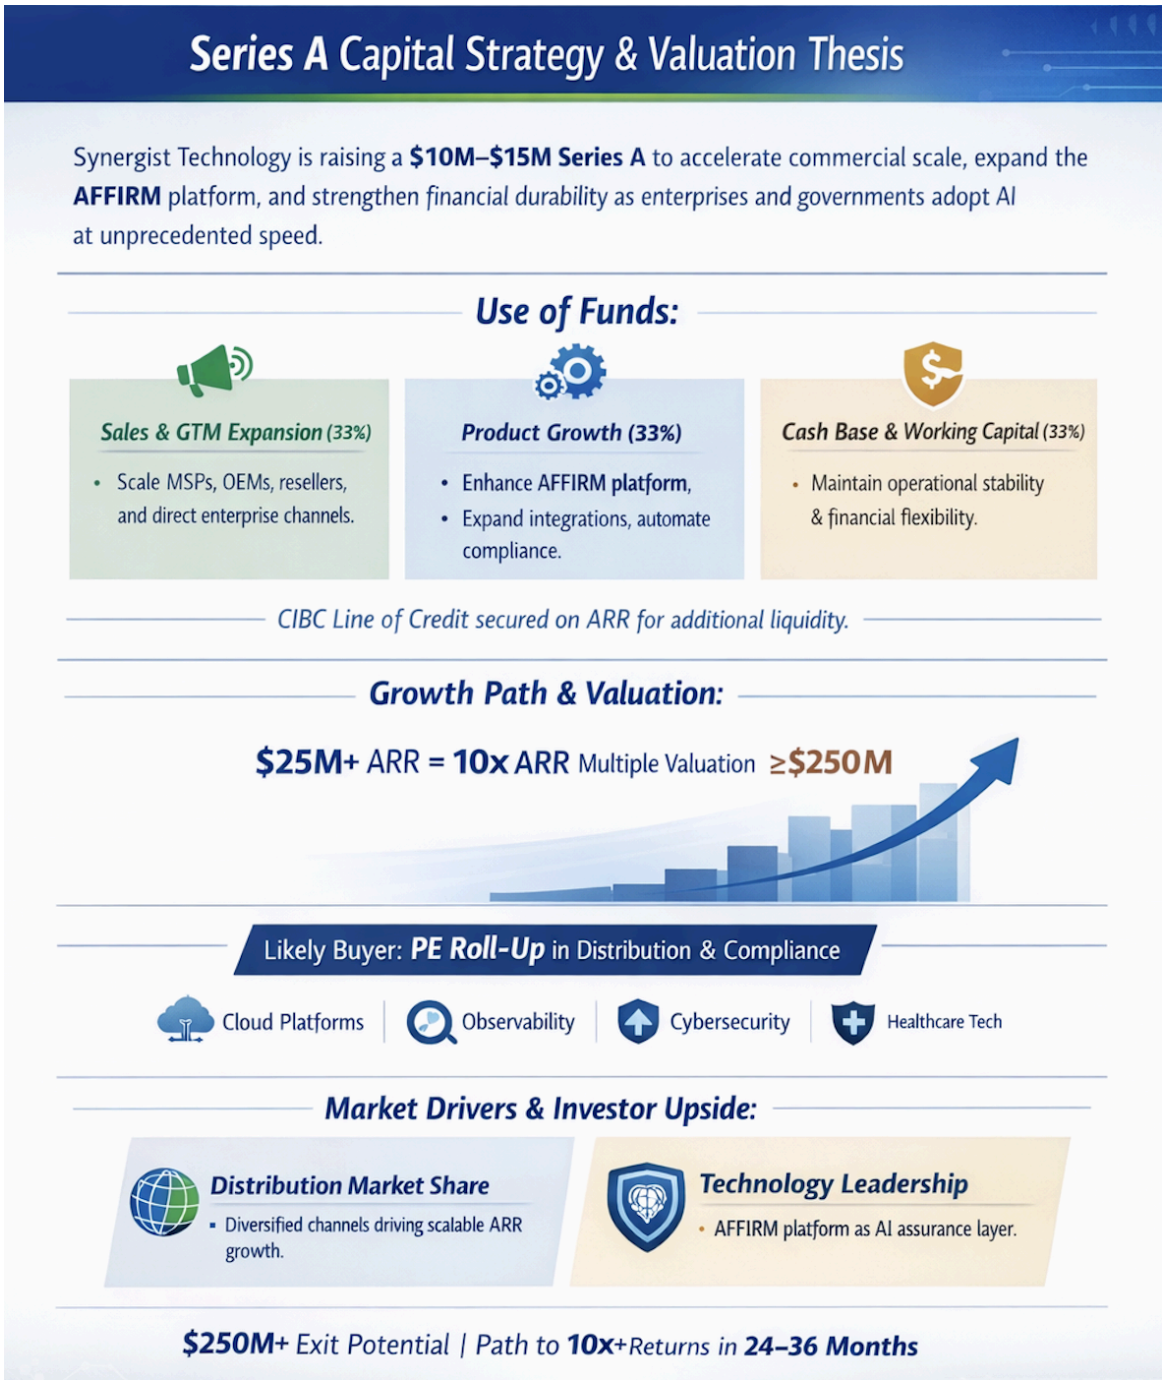
Growth Path & Valuation

As Synergist scales beyond $25M ARR, valuation becomes driven primarily by revenue multiples. With strong channel leverage, regulatory alignment, and enterprise adoption, Synergist is positioned to command a minimum 10× ARR multiple, implying a valuation north of $250M at $25M ARR. This aligns with market behavior for high-margin SaaS / PaaS platforms in AI.

Exit Outlook

The most likely acquirer is a private equity (PE) roll-up focused on distribution, compliance, or AI infrastructure, where Synergist becomes the AI assurance pillar across a broader portfolio. Strategic buyers — including cloud hyperscalers, cybersecurity suites, and tech service providers — also represent meaningful upside optionality.

Market Drivers & Investor Upside

- Distribution Market Share - Synergist's diversified sales channels create scalable, defensible ARR growth with low CAC.
- Technology Leadership - AFFIRM's monitoring, compliance automation, and audit capabilities position Synergist as the trusted AI assurance layer across industries.


With a massive and expanding TAM, accelerating regulatory demand, and a clear path to $25M–$50M ARR, Synergist offers Series A investors a compelling opportunity for 10× plus returns and a $250M plus exit within 24–36 months.
